PAY LESS FOR FINE-CAR OWNERSHIP WITH OAKLAND EIGHT

YOU REALLY MUST DRIVE AN OAKLAND TO LEARN WHAT IT WILL

No matter how able it looks-or what owners say for it-you'll never really appreciate Oakland's performance until you take the wheel yourself. . . .

Head for some hill with a second-gear reputation. Never mind the flying start. Gather your speed on the way up. Then look back and wonder where the problem was!

Shift your way through thick traffic. See if that's any trouble, with Syncro-Mesh transmission quietly slipping from gear to gear at a light touch. Always in gear-no danger.

Out beyond the city limits, try and find Oakland's speed limitif your nerve allows it!

And then-parking, turning, jockeying for position-write a new definition of easy handling in a man's-size car.

Perhaps the best thing about it all is this: The longer you drive Oakland the more you'll realize that its unusual performance is built in to stay.

And so, with these qualities at such a moderate price, you'll see why we say pay less for fine-car ownership, with Oakland Eight.

New Ward Reduction Plan Offered

Proposed redistricting of the borough of Atlanta under the James L. Key plan, as approved by the people of Atlanta, is shown in the above drawing. Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward, will ask council Monday to approve the plan so that it can be forwarded to members of the Georgia general assembly and thus remove the only objection local assemblymen have voiced to it. All ward lines have been abolished except the general divisions between the merged wards, which have been retained as before. The proposal lends itself admirably to the Key ward and council reduction plan, which proposes to cut wards from 13 to 6 and council membership from 39 to 18. Under the plan the new first ward will be composed of the old 13th and 9th; the second of the 11th and 12th; the third of the second and third; the fourth of the 7th and 10th; the fifth of the first, fifth and sixth, and the sixth of the fourth and eighth.

that are successfully attacked in the courts for their unconstitutionality.

The trouble grows out of the fact passed at the extraordinary session of the legislature clinched it both ways, i.e., it catches them coming and going and principally going.

A Case Now Pending.

There is a case now pending in the present session of the general assembly which brings to the front acutely whether the constitution shall govern the decision, or be violated to please political interests.

The Georgia constitution commands

It is always to be presumed that the legislature will conform its enactments with the constitution of the state. The purpose of a constitution is to set the limitations within which the legislature may act, agreeably to the permissions or prohibitions of within which the legislature may act, agreeably to the permissions or prohibitions of the organic law—the constitution which creates the legislature and is always superior to its creature.

Eight counties—Fulton, Chatham,
Bibb, Richmond, DeKalb, Muscogee,
Floyd and Laurens—have three representatives each, or 24 in all.

The next 30 counties have two representatives each, or 60 in all.

The other 123 counties have one representative each representative each. So that the house has 24 plus 60 plus 123, or 207 members in all.

Now there is a bill pending to continue that frameup, with only the regularity and security of the state than that the legislature shall be formed in strict accordance with the constitution which creates and delineates it.

Unless the general assembly conforms with the provisions of the constitution all of its acts are subject to stitution all of its acts are subject to since Troup has 36,752 population and Laurens has dropped to 32,693.

But What About This Law?

The amendment of 1920 provided or that apportionment undoubtedly, twenty-six counties having the next largest population two representatives each; but in no event shall the aggre-gate number of representatives be increased."

That would give the next house a membership of 18 plus 52 plus 128, or a total of 198 instead of 207, with one representative from Campbell county omitted because it merges into Fulton county after January 1, 1932.

Shall the Constitution Rule?

The question must arise whether this general assembly will obey that mandate of the constitution, or will they go ahead and ignore it, by passing the pending bill to keep the house as it is, less the effect of any county mergers that may be made meantime? That provision stands out in the constitution as boldly as Stone Mountain from the terrain of DeKalh.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY WE'BE GROWING MORE CON-SERVATIVE TOWARD TONSILS.

In the past few years several new methods of dealing with enlarged or infected tonsils have been introduced and used with success by physicians who have special training and skill in the special work. One method which I have "promoted" here as much as I believe it deserves is the diathermy extirpation, otherwise called electro-coagulation of tonsils. This must not be confused with the old time "burning" of the tonsils by cautery—a piece of metal heated red hot either by flame or by electricity, and then thrust into the tonsil. That was frightfully crude and it never deserved serious consider-ation. The diathermy method involves no burning at all. Indeed, many pa-tients go through most or all of the half dozen sittings required without even a local anesthetic.

In the earlier days of diathermy extirpation it was quite conventional for the doctor or throat specialist who was totally ignorant of the method to tell inquirers it was "dangerous," or that it was useless against infec-tion, or that it had been tried out many years ago and discarded (obviously this was confusion of the cau tery with diathermy in the doctor's mind).

As it is now regularly employed by the better physicians and throat spethe better physicians and throat specialists everywhere, diathermy is proving extraordinarily effective in disinfecting foci of infection in the tonsils, in many instances, without subjecting the patient to the serious risks of the old-time operation. It happens not at all rarely that the systemic trouble begins to improve rapidly after the first or second diathermy treatment—indicating that the my freatment—indicating that the physician happened to sterilize or disinfect the spetic focus at the first or second application.

RICHMOND, Va., July 28.—(P)—Governor Pollard today signed a conditional pardon for Mrs. Lena Formash, of Henrico county, mother of four children, who had served 20 days of a six-month sentence for second offense violation of the prohibition law.

The executive said that he was much impressed with the plea made to him by the children, who came to his office and said that their father was in a hospital and with their mother in jail there was no one to make a home for them. East Point Robins Win as DeKalb Barons Lose at Gainesville; Cook, Dann, Toomer and McWilliams Qualify for Amateur Georgia's greatest fox hunters met Tuesday at a barbecue just a few miles outside Hogansville.

It wasn't a meeting of fox hunters per se. It was the annual family reunion of the Ware family. There were five sons who grew up on the Ware farms about Hogansville and all of them

The reunion was held Tuesday in an oak grove in front of the old homestead where more than 100 years ago John M. Ware built his home.

About the tables in the grove moved a half dozen fox hounds, favorites from the kennel of H. H. Ware, who went fox hunting just seven days out of last week.

There were Walker hounds and July hounds in the Now, to a fox hunter the Walker and July debate is something that can make words and tempers hot. It is a subject to he approached with delicacy and with diplomacy. Never walk up to a fox hound man and assert that the Walker hound can out-run and out-hunt any July hound ever whelped. He may swing suddenly, busting you on the heak without warning. Or he may embrace you with an "Amen brother."

For more than 40 years, man and boy, H. H. Ware has had his pack of fox hounds.

And he leans to the Walkers a bit—for the longer races.

"If I were going out to hunt for a week I would take Walkers ers every time," he said. "For a hunt of a day or two, I'd take the July hounds. They are faster and have more mouth for a semi-finals.

Cedartown took an uninteresting contest from Athens, 11 to 0.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the Atlanta Robins will be up against that same Lindale bunch that conquered Decatur. The game will be played at New Holland.

At the same time, LaGrange will play Gainesville at City park.

At the same Lindale bunch that conquered Decatur. The game will be played at New Holland.

Cedartown took an uninteresting contest from Athens, 11 to 0.

There really isn't any sport like hunting the fox. It is the only sport which demands a sort of ritual. And to see a pack of hounds full on the trail and perhaps to catch a glimpse of the red fox, his brush low and his legs flying, is a sight. A real sight.

The fox hunters know. They keep at it from childhood on

And while the Walker hounds win most of the prizes in the national trials, don't accept that as final.

Do not speak to a July man in trifling tone and mention his

DAVID'S WEAPON IN STYLE AGAIN.

Most people figured that the slingshot or flipper retired undefeated after the victory over Goliath.

But Joe Featherston, of Newnan, has kept the old weapon, which you no doubt tried as a boy, in style. Joe Featherston attended the barbecue Tuesday because he likes to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning and go out on a fox chase. He has a fox-hunting kinship with the Wares.

The flipper becomes a weapon of deadly accuracy in the

Yet at five paces he killed two flies in three shots At six paces he hit small gravel.

"I find squirrels the hardest thing to kill," he said, "They have to be hit in the head. Rabbits are easy. I seldom fail to

"I was out hunting once with a preacher, who can back up my story, and killed a quail with one shot.'

And the fun Joe Featherston has had with that flipper. One of the stories they tell on him concerns the breaking up of a carnival act. There was a colored boy sticking his head through a hole in a canvas wall and dodging baseballs. He was yelling in derision, "Too high, never totched me." Joe Featherston got behind the tent wall and got his flipper in action.

The colored boy tore down the canvas wall as he surged forward

"My goodness," he cried, as he danced around, "sumpin" sho totched me then.'

TUBBY'S HOME TOWN.

It develops that Tubby Walton, the restauranteer, has been deceiving the good citizens of Atlanta for years and years.

The town of Hogansville had a familiar ring about it. And then suddenly it all came back-it was the town claimed by Tubby Walton as his home town.

Diligent research revealed that Tubby Walton was born and raised at Corinth crossroads, six miles from Hogansville.

"We are trying to get up material to put up a lifesize statue of Tubby," said a gentleman at Corinth Corners, "but with the depression on we have been able to get just about enough material together to make one

"It is all very discouraging. As soon as we get a good start Tubby gains 60 or 80 pounds. Making a life-size statue of Tubby is going to be difficult."

A REAL PINCH HITTER.

From Cartersville comes the following story, sworn to be-

Cartersville's colored boys were away from home playing a rival team.

The score was tied in the ninth when the home team came to bat. With two out they got the winning run on third base. It was time for strategy. The strategy was a pinch hitter.

He was six feet, two inches tall, wore a scowl and a tight-fitting uniform. He carried a bat six inches longer than the regulation size.

The Cartersville pitcher burned one down the middle and the umpire, honest to a fault, said "Strike one."

The pinch hitter turned and looked the umpire up and down, his scowl fiercer than ever, and resumed his place at bat.

Again the Cartersville pitcher burned one in. Two," velled the honest umpire.

"Two whut?" asked the pinch hitter, as he gripped his bat in a threatening manner.

"Too high," said the umpire very quickly. And the boys from Cartersville knew that all hope was gone. And it was.

Triumph and disappointment visited

And as soon as they got on the bases they went wild. They stole everything in Gainesville. There were exactly 11 stolen bases. Out at New Holland ball park, where the semi-finals and finals of the tourney will be played tomorrow and Thursday, the DeKalb Barons put up a great fight before finally going down before a better team.

The Lindale Pepperells looked mighty good lin defeating the champions. They are the team to beat in this tournament. They are coached by Slick Moulton, former Auburn star who managed Lindale in the old Georgia-Alabama league, and are sponsored by the Rome Legion post. They broke the Barons' hearts by connecting with the ball when hits meant runs. They got only nine hits to Decatur's 11, but theirs counted.

Making a Lost Contract

A lead is the right to play first. A lead is also the obligation to play when you have taken the preceding trick. This right is sometimes of value; at others times it is an "old value; at others times it is an "old man of the sea," whom you are anx-ious to shake from your shoulders. There are hands that can be made only by throwing the lead to a chos-

only by throwing the lead to a chosen opponent at the correct moment. Proper timing of the play is as essential as placing the lead where you want it to be. Hands of this type are usually based, when there is a trump, upon the elimination of all the cards of one or more suits from both the closed hand and the dumming. The hand below is an example in

The hand below is an example in which, against the best defense, game can be made in no other way than by the elimination of all the hearts in the dummy, the one outstanding trump from the West hand and the way of a coard in the year of a coard in the year.

North has strong assistance for the club bid and, of course, shows that fact at once.

South's hand is much stronger than was shown by his Opening bid of one club. He raises the contract to game.

4—North cannot bid for a Slam. The bidding has not indicated that the combined holding in honor-tricks would justify such an attempt. West holds at least 3 honor-tricks, as shown by his Double. West opened the spade King and this South won with the Acc. Apparently he must lose a spade and either one or two diamonds, dependent upon the location of the missing honors in the diamond suit. The Double seemed to indicate that West held the Acc and thus if South led a diamond from the North hand, the contract would probably be defeated 1 trick. There was, however, one chance for South to make his contract and that was to force West to lead the diamond suit. This could only be done in one way. This could only be done in one way and that was by eliminating spades and hearts from both the Dummy and the closed hands. South immediately started on the work of eliminating by leading the singleton heart to the Ace in the Dummy. Another heart was led and trumped in the closed hand and Dummy was then put in with a trump to lead the third round of hearts. This also was trumped by the Declarer and another trump placed the lead in the Dummy so that the last heart could be led. This the Declarer trumped as he had the stage now set to make his contract rather than leaving it to guess work. The Opening lead by West had been the spade King. This lead indicated that he also held the spade Queen. After trumping Dummy's last heart, the Declarer led the spade Knave and

The lead of any other suit was just as disastrous as the Declarer would discard a diamond in the Dummy and thus lose only one spade and one diamond. In actual play, West led the diamond Ace and followed, as a forlorn hope, with a small diamond. South won the second round of diamonds and reaped the reward of a well-bid and well-played hand.

"The 'Finessee' Value of Honors."

Excepting Aces and long sequences, the bidding value of lower honors is based upon their finesse value in actual play. The precise trick value of single honors such as K x and of combined honors such as A Q or K J 10 depends on the position of missing higher honor (or honors) of the same suit. As it is prudent to assume that nigher nonor (or nonors) of the same suit. As it is prudent to assume that the missing higher honor is held by one of the opponents and not by part-per the chances are then exactly half for or against a successful finesse. In bidding valuation we have according-ly half or probable trick values in dis-tinction to the full trick estimate for inction to the full trick estimate for Aces and King-Queens. Two such half trick values are about equivalent to an Ace.

THE TWINS ARE GIVEN A WARNING.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS Who knows his weakness ever tries To overcome it if he's wise. —Fleetfoot the Antelope.

The twins followed Fleetfoot around whenever they could. This was partly because they admired him so, and partly because he was always ready for a race or a romp. At the same time they learned many things from him. It was he who taught them their greatest weakness.

"My children," said he, "you can trust your legs, you can trust your nose, you can trust your ears, but unless you are careful your eyes may lead you into trouble. As you grow older you will see many strange things, but don't be too curious. Do you see that scar on my hip?"

The twins nodded. They had often noticed it and wondered about it.

company, in the hands of a receiver and tieing up the properties of the company in Georgia, amounting to more than $900,000, was signed Tuesday by Judge Virlyn B. Moore in Fulton superior court.

Action was taken by William B. Harrison, as state insurance commissioner, against the life insurance company. In the petition of Harrison, it is alleged that the company is insolvent and he asked that a receiver be appointed. Lewis A. Irons was named to take charge of all premiums, assets, properties, etc., and ordered assets, properties, etc., and ordered to report at a hearing which was set before Judge Moore for August 29. It was set out in the petition that the company has more than 15,000 policy holders in the state.

NEW YORK. July 28.—Firmness continued to characterize the market today as traders awaited dividen, action by United States Steel directors after the close. Pivotal stocks showed no trace of nervousness despite the fact that a lowering of dividend on Steel common was generally anticipated. Throughout the list individual issues which had shown notable buoyancy before the last market setback suggested resumption of acsive interest on the part of their sponsors and trading following. Among such issues Chrysler, Kroger, Montgomery Ward and Lorillard were complete.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Standard Facts and Forecasts in reviewing corporation earnings for the second quarter points out that the reports thus far made public generally have shown no appreciable decline as compared with initial three months of 1931. It is interesting to note, says the service, that 55 companies which have reported for the first and second quarters show a decline in total net during the latter period of only 5 per cent. Aggregate net income of 117 industrial corporations reporting for first half of 1931 amounted to 133.1 millions vs. 186.3 millions in the corresponding 1930 period, a decrease of 29 per cent. Of this number, however, approximately one-quarter showed increased profits as compared with first half last year.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(UP) Agreement on new regulations to make flying safer for the millions of Americans who now travel this way was reached at a conference at the commerce department today in which wealthy air line operators rubbed shoulders with the men who pilot their ships.

After the all-day conference, attended by 30 operators and 11 pilots. Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young announced the additional regulations would be drafted and promulgated within a few days. It was the first time that pilots attended such a meeting and they

One of the most important revisions of present regulations was prohibition of operation of passenger transport ships over fogs and clouds without two-way radio equipment. Highlights Wall Street BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street. NEW YORK, July 28.—The pre-NEW YORK, July 28.—The predicted "major operation" on the dividend of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation, for which Wall Street has been waiting, was performed heroically late this afternoon shortly after the market closed when the directors ordered a disbursement of $1 a share for the quarter. 1 Dela El Pow 54a '59 . 2 Denv & S Lake 6a '60 20 Det Int Bridge 64a '52.

This is at the annual rate of $4 a share compared with $7 a share yearly which the corporation has been paying. General expectation in the street had been that the dividend would be reduced to $5 a share yearly so that the cut to $4 was an unpleasant surprise. pleasant surprise.

The size of this cut directed attention to what might be expected of the Bethleheem Steel board which meets on Thursday to take action on its distribution for the quarter. EXPECT HEAVINESS. quarter.

EXPECT HEAVINESS.

The cut in the steel corporation's common dividend to 'a point below what had been expected is expected to find unfavorable reflection in the stock market tomorrow, especially in the price of steel common as its current price is high, according to experts, when considered as a $4 dividend payer. The poor earnings of the corporation for the second quarter will also have a depressing influence owing to the fact that some other corporations for the scond quarter have been showing up better than for the first three months of the year.

It has been a popular belief in the Street for a generation that the steel corporation could make money when the other steel companies could not. This belief seems to have been exploded by the two recent quarterly statements of the corporations.

The bear was almost upon him. Not waiting to see the effect of his arrows, the ape-man turned and leaped swiftly down the trail. Close behind him came the growling beast. The fertile mind of the ape-man had evolved a plan upon which hung his hope of salvation, as by a slender thread, and his flight was a part of his strategy. Closely he watched the cliff walls rising above the trail down which the infuriated animal was chasing

At last he saw that for which he had oped. A jut-ting granite crag projected about 25 feet above the trail. His coiled rope was ready in his left hand, the noose in his right. As he came within throwing distance of the projection he unerringly tossed the latter over it. The bear tore down the trail behind him, unable to stop its speed. The ape-man pulled heavily once upon the end of the rope to assure himself that it was securely caught above. Then, with the agility of Manu the monkey, he clambered Flower of Zoram had angrily turned away from the young American, Jason Gridley. Being familiar with feminine psychology, Jason was not so dense as not to know why she was displeased with him. She knew she was beautiful and it was but natural for this little savage to believe her charms had captured his heart. Had he not risked his life to save her from the wolfdogs? She couldn't understand it.

Many men of Zoram had fallen victims to her charms and now this stranger would not speak the love she thought his eyes had revealed. Jason was sorry that anything had occurred to mar their friendship. It was not nice of her to have called him a "jalok," which he knew was a term of high insult in Pellucidar. Just the same, he followed her, but had not taken a dozen steps when she wheeled upon him like a young tigress, whipping her stone knife from its sheath. "Go, I told you!" she cried. "If you follow me I shall kill you!"

Board Expected To Consider Ouster Movement at August 11 Session.

Demand for the ouster of Willis A Sutton, for the last 10 years superintendent of Atlanta public schools and recently retired president of the National Education Association, prob-ably will reach the floor of the board of education at its meeting August 11, it was indicated Tuesday following sending of a letter to all mem-bers urging immediate action "for the benefit of the people of Atlanta."

President and Mrs. Hoover returned to the White House early today after spending the last three days and four nights at their Rapidan camp.

The matter was precipitated Tuesday when Walter S. McNeal, president of the South Side Civic Federation, composed of about a score of local organizations, addressed a letter to nights at their Rapidan camp.

The week-end vacation is the longest rest the chief executive has had since his trip to Porto Rico in March.

The presidential party left the camp about sunup and made a leisurely trip to the capital.
